A Comparative Study of Separable Verbs Usage Across The Strait

DIAO Yanbin

Arts Department Beijing Normal University Beijing 100875 China

Abstract Separable verbs is a distinctive part of speech in Chinese while demonstrate large differences in usage across The Strait. It is surveyed that the number and forms of Separable verbs in Mandarin far surpass that in Taiwan' s Mandarin as well as the use frequency. The most obvious difference mainly appears in the usage between " trending " Separable verbs and the ones co-occurred with complement or dynamic auxiliary " guo ". Separable verbs has a strong oral tendency which highly corresponds with the orientation of popularization in Mandarin while shows a relative low correspondence with the conservative tendency in Taiwan' s Mandarin this is the most important reason that makes the differences across The Strait.

Key words The Strait Mandarin Taiwan' s Mandarin separable verbs
